CREDITS

The JAK Typeface was crafted by the talented Michael Creamer, or Bodephus, on Instagram. He's an absolute magician and I highly recommend you go check out his other work!

I once asked Michael for his advice on design. Here's what he had to say:

DESIGN IS VAST. MAKE IT VASTER.

“Be influenced by designers and artists and media and nature and everything you think is cool. All of that is a part of your perspective. Replicating another artist or a trend can be cool, but I've already seen it. I want to be inspired by the thing that you make that I haven't seen yet. Reach into imagery and ideas that you don't see anyone using. Look for new combinations. Bring yourself to it. Your own identity, your unique tastes — that's what makes your work yours.

Keep at it. Even if you think you suck and all your designs are failures. Keep iterating until you find that version that fails the least. Sometimes on a good day the ideas will come to me and the design process will go smoothly, sometimes I hate everything I make. But every time I design, I learn. Failure is just part of the process and I take what I learn with me into the next design.”
